INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE OF COPPER DECOR

Copper décor is a highly durable material. Properly selected for its intended use and installed correctly, it will last for years. Caring for it according to the manufacturer's recommendations will ensure that these decorations will delight the eyes of recipients and their descendants for generations to come.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS OF COPPER DECORS

Each copper plate has a unique pattern and color. Therefore, each piece is unique and cannot be completely repeated. Due to the nature of the material and its processing method, the decors may vary in shade and texture.

The varying shades of manufactured panels are a natural consequence of the physicochemical reactions occurring during the patina process. This difference may result from both acceptable shade variations and varying lighting conditions – temperature, color, and intensity of light, as well as juxtaposition with other colors in the vicinity, can influence their perception..

The dimensions of the boards may differ from those given on the website, label and purchase document, within the permissible deviation of +/- 1 mm.

Decors delivered after purchase may differ from those displayed in exhibitions.

Copper sheets are impact-resistant, but should be transported, handled, and stored with due care, preferably in their original packaging. Storage recommendations must be strictly followed to avoid damage.

GENERAL INFORMATION ON THE INSTALLATION AND USE OF COPPER DECOR

All copper decors manufactured by Copper Philosophy should be used for their intended purpose. Installation should be in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendations.

Cutting

Decors are made to specific dimensions and are not intended for cutting, slitting, notching, carving, sanding, or drilling. We can produce all types of cutouts upon request.

Installation

All decors should be installed by individuals with appropriate skills and experience. Copper Philosophy is not responsible for installation by individuals who do not meet the above standards or for installation performed by third parties.

The choice of installation method and materials is the responsibility of the person purchasing and/or installing the copper decors, however the manufacturer provides the recommended materials with a full description of the installation in the "COPPER DECOR INSTALLATION INSTRUCTIONS".

COPPER PHILOSOPHY

Copper Philosophy, a brand that sells copper decors, does not have complete information on the conditions in which the tiles will be installed and therefore cannot provide specific information regarding installation methods.

Decor installation should always be performed according to the manufacturer's recommendations, using chemicals appropriate for the type of tiles and the conditions in which they will be installed. Manufacturers' recommendations must be strictly followed during installation. The substrate on which the tiles will be installed must be clean and even. Depending on the substrate and installation location, preparation may be necessary.

Cleaning

We recommend cleaning with a damp microfiber/soft cloth. Copper decors should be cleaned regularly to prevent the accumulation of dirt, which would require the use of stronger, more hazardous cleaning agents. Copper decors do not require impregnation.
